The Home: Theme Of County Meeting

"The Home" should be the center of every woman's interest, but not the circumference was the theme of the annual Will County Home Bureau all-day meeting attended by nearly 500 members and guests at Frankfort on October 1.

The morning session in the School gymnasium was opened with an invocation by Rev. Erick Bizer of Frankfort.

Campaign Centered In Cook County

Having completed a campaign tour of 101 downstate counties, Republican candidates for state offices are now centering their campaign in Cook County and northeastern Illinois. According to A. F. Schupp, chairman of the Will County Republican Central Committee, present indications point to an overwhelming Republican victory in the Nov. 5 election.

"We are confident," said Mr. Schupp, "that the citizens of Illinois are going to respond enthusiastically to the opportunity and the challenge offered them in the coming election. Here in Illinois, under a Republican administration, we have seen an outstanding example of good government during one of the most trying periods in the world's history. Our people want that kind of government to continue in Illinois. At the same time, we are observing throughout the state a growing determination to extend that kind of government on a national scale."

"Our people are rightly demanding an end to the present confusion in Washington. They feel that they are entitled to know exactly what our nation's policies are, and to have something to say about them," Schupp continued.

"They have had enough of food shortages, spiraling living costs, and regimentation of their individual lives by Washington bureaus and bureaucrats."

During the campaign tour of downstate counties, Vernon L. Nickell, candidate for re-election as superintendent of public instruction, Richard Yates Rowe, candidate for state treasurer, and Wm. G. Stratton, candidate for congressman at large, found that hundreds of lifelong Democrats are swinging over to the Republican ranks in a determined effort to end the present confusion and bring about national stability at a time when the future of our nation hangs in the balance.

"We are greatly encouraged, too," concluded Schupp, "to know that our people are eagerly accepting their responsibility as citizens to go to the polls on November 5. We believe that the vote in this election will be a big one, and we sincerely hope that it is. That's the American way to make our government what we want it to be."

Mokena People Narrowly Escape Death By Fast Train

Tuesday evening when the east-bound Rock Island train from Joliet arrived at Mokena at 5:45 there were a number of Mokena passengers aboard.

The train had stopped to leave these passengers off, and as they did so, a thru-train whizzed by.

Mrs. John Martin, Mrs. Geo. Marti and Miss Carol Stermer, had just alighted from the train when all of a sudden, Mrs. Martin saw the head light of a fast moving train bearing down upon them. She screamed to Mrs. Marti to hurry and cross the tracks and as they did so the train passed by so close that they were frightened to a standstill. They were caught between the two trains and were fortunate to have crossed the track or else the suction of the train would have drawn them under.

At the same time at the exit of another coach of the same train, other Mokena passengers were starting to alight, and Mrs. Wm. Lowe who was the first person, was on the bottom step of the train. The conductor happened to see her and the on-coming train and reached her just in time to pull her back to safety.

This was a terrible experience for all those passengers and the shock remained with them for several days. There is no agent at the depot at this hour.

It is a good idea before alighting from a train to look if another train is approaching and if it is safe to get off.

Seems this should be the duty of the trainmen in charge, to see if it is safe for his passengers to leave the train.

PAUL MAKES A NEW START

LESSON TEXT—Acts 26:9-18; I Corinthians 15:8-10.

MEMORY SELECTION—This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners.—I Timothy 1:15.

All that a man has by nature is not enough. We saw last week the preparation by heredity, education and environment which Paul had for a place of leadership. But it was not enough. The capable, well-born, well-trained young Jewish aristocrat had to be born again spiritually before he could do God's work.

Careful Bible students regard the conversion of Paul and the resurrection of Christ as the two outstanding events of the New Testament. Without the resurrection of Jesus, the conversion of Saul of Tarsus (whom we know as Paul the apostle) would not have been possible, and at the same time his conversion is one of the strongest proofs of the resurrection.

We find him in three relationships.

I. By Nature—Contrary to Christ (Acts 26:9-12).

It is not enough, as some of us suppose, that a man be sincere. Paul was entirely sincere in his conviction that he ought to persecute the Christians. He did it with a good conscience (Acts 23:1), for a man's conscience commends him for doing what he believes to be right, even though he may be wrong in his thinking.

He was sincere, but he was anti-Christian. By nature man is at enmity with God. No good thing dwells in the flesh apart from the redeeming grace of God (Rom. 8:7; James 4:4; Rom. 7:18).

Stirred, probably by the faithful testimony of Stephen, to even greater zeal against the followers of Christ, Paul had to find new worlds to conquer, so he set out "breathing out threatenings and slaughter to destroy the church in Damascus" as he had sought to do in Jerusalem.

He was a bold persecutor, doing all he could "contrary to the name of Jesus" (v. 9), until he met the Lord himself on the Damascus road. Ah, that meeting made him a different man and he became

II. By Faith—Converted to Christ (Acts 26:13-18).

Stricken down by a brilliant heavenly light, he found himself talking to the Lord Jesus. He heard from his holy lips the solemn indictment of those who persecute God's people—"Why persecutest thou me?" He who lays unkind hands upon, or brings untrue accusation against, God's children had better beware, for so closely is our Lord identified with his people that when they suffer, it is he who bears the hurt.

In a single sentence the Lord disposed of the persecuting zeal and the sinful skepticism of this proud young Pharisee, and Saul entered into Damascus not as the haughty persecutor, but as a man trembling and astonished. He spent three days shut in with his own soul and God; not seeing, not caring to eat, but entering into communion with God. By God's grace the old life was pulled up by the roots as it was displaced by the new life in Christ Jesus.

God had a great commission awaiting Paul as soon as he was ready for it (vv. 16-18). He was to be the apostle to the Gentiles, and that includes so many of us. The gospel which had come first to the Jews, was now to go out into all the world and to all people.

The change in Paul was a drastic one. He was as one who was alive from the dead. It was not a case of adjusting or refurbishing the old persecutor Saul—here was a new creature in Christ, ordained to good works (Eph. 2:8-10).

III. By Grace—Confessing Christ (I Cor. 15:8-10).

Twenty years had passed since Paul's conversion. He had been out serving Christ, in season and out of season. He had known persecution, suffering and opposition. Now he was writing, by inspiration of the Holy Spirit, about the resurrection, telling of those who had seen the risen Christ. He included himself as one born out of his time.

It is a personal vision of the living Saviour which vitalizes the spirit of a witness and makes his testimony ring true. Paul saw Christ. We too may see Him with the eye of faith, and by His grace become witnesses.

Effort and labor are involved. This matter of witnessing is not something which automatically does itself. "I labored more abundantly," said Paul, and yet he knew that it was the grace of God in him which accomplished the result (see v. 10 and Phil. 2:13).

That is it! The grace of God working on and in and through a man. And at the same time, that man laboring diligently that the grace bestowed upon him should not be found vain. It is in this manner God's work gets done on earth!

Science Seeks Radio to Moon

New Army Rockets Being Built Expected to Make Trip in 60 Hours.

PITTSBURGH. — A scientist who was a Manhattan project representative at the second atomic bomb test at Bikini advances the technical possibility of moon-to-earth broadcasts which would give mankind information now only conjectured about the moon. Of course, broadcasts from the moon first involve getting to the moon, and for that the scientist, Dr. J. A. Hutcheson, looked to the army, which expects to build earth-to-moon rockets within 18 months.

60 Hours for Trip.

Dr. Hutcheson, associate director of the Westinghouse research laboratories, said a radio transmitting set weighing less than 100 pounds, including batteries, could be placed in the rocket. This hermetically sealed transmitter, although small, would have the power to send signals 240,000 miles from the moon to the earth via ultra short waves.

To conserve the batteries, Dr. Hutcheson proposes broadcasts for one minute each hour. A rocket ascending at 4,000 miles an hour would take approximately 60 hours to reach the moon. The batteries would still have enough life to broadcast for several days from the moon.

The scientist said that through signals sent automatically from the rocket radio progress and landing of the rocket would be reported, along with temperature changes on the moon.

Can Tell New Facts.

"Station M-O-O-N also might help us discover many facts which now are largely a matter of conjecture," he said in a statement. "It generally is assumed there is no moisture on the moon. Instruments aboard the rocket could check on this fact and relay the answer to earth by radio."

Dr. Hutcheson also figured out how to land the 4,000 mile an hour rockets without smashing the delicate radio instruments aboard. The proximity fuse, used in wartime to explode shells at just the right moment, would do the trick by automatically turning on reverse rockets and turning off forward rocket power as the rockets approach the moon.

Jack Frost Gets Bit of

Debunking by Experts

WASHINGTON.—It's sugar and not Jack Frost that tints the foliage of autumn with reds, yellows and browns, says the forest service of the department of agriculture.

Popular belief to the contrary, tree leaves actually change color before cold weather begins as part of the plants' preparation for winter.

"All during the spring and summer," says a booklet just released by the service, "the leaves have served as factories, where foods necessary for the tree's growth have been manufactured."

"In the fall when the cool weather causes a slowing down of the vital processes, the work of the leaves comes to an end."

"The machinery of the leaf factory is dismantled. Whatever food there is on hand is sent to the body of the tree to be stored for use in the spring."

"All that remains in the cell cavities of the leaf is a watery substance in which a few oil globules and crystals, and a small number of yellow, strongly refractive bodies can be seen. These give the leaves the yellow coloring."

"It often happens that there is more sugar in the leaf than can readily be transferred back to the tree."

"When this is the case, the chemical combination with other substances produces many

Jobless Benefits Hit Billion Mark

Work for 3 Million Vets Is Urgently Needed.

WASHINGTON. — Unemployment payments to veterans under the "52-20" program passed the $1,000,000,000 mark in July, the Veterans' administration announced.

Payments in July amounted to $135,546,855 — an average of about $34,000,000 a week — to increase to $1,063,920,144 total payments made since the program began in September, 1944.

VA estimated that it would be necessary to provide three million jobs in the second half of 1946 to eliminate unemployment among veterans. About two and one-half million jobs would be needed to bring the rate of unemployment among veterans to that of non-veterans.

Since the readjustment allowance program went into effect — $20 a week for a maximum of 52 weeks — some 3,900,000 veterans or 40 per cent of the total number of Second World War veterans have applied for allowances.

The average duration of a veteran's stay on the rolls, VA said, is about 10 weeks. About half of the claimants, it added, receive benefits for less than eight weeks.

The comparative unemployment rate among veterans since demobilization still is three times that for other males, VA said.

"The concentration of job vacancies at the lower pay levels, the small proportion of veterans receiving jobs through public employment offices, and the continuing gap between the number of applications and placements of handicapped veterans," it said, "all point to the need for a positive job placement program."

"In the absence of a positive placement program, there is clearly a danger that many veterans will exhaust entitlement to benefits without attaining the readjustment objective."

91 Million Eligible

To Vote This Fall

WASHINGTON. — The census bureau reported recently there will be an all-time record of more than 91 million potential voters this year.

Women seem destined to be "increasingly influential" in future elections, it said.

The figures were based on the number of persons reaching the age of 21 as of July 1.

In the 1944 elections, the bureau said, there were slightly more than 89,000,000 voters.

The bureau noted a trend to greater exercise of the voting privilege, but said the number of votes this year probably will be less than the 47 million cast in 1944. The reason given was that there is "far lighter" balloting in non-Presidential years.

Horse Meat Trade Booms, Aim at Foreign Market

WASHINGTON. — After some coaxing plus a good many dollars from relief funds, U. S. horse meat processors are shooting for a permanent foreign market, UNRRA reports.

Six new plants are packing horse meat for human consumption, an UNRRA food specialist said. Increasing foreign purchases in this country are building a promising trade in which the U. S. will compete with Canada and Mexico.

UNRRA will ship between 70 and 80 million pounds of horse meat abroad this year. Most of it will go to Poland, Czechoslovakia and Austria.

Only three U. S. plants—at Estherville, Iowa; Topeka, Kas., and Rockford, Ill.—killed and packed horse meat for human consumption.

Now, as a result of the UNRRA campaign, there are plants

Mark Darrell, young American lumberman, is boss of a lumber camp near St. Victor, Canada. He and his assistant, Nat Page, almost lose their lives when their boat strikes a rock. They clamber ashore and are met by the lighthouse-keeper, Andre Galipeault. When the old man discovers their identity, he immediately becomes hostile. With him is a young and pretty woman, Madame Madeleine Kinross, a widow. She owns the timberland that Mark and his backers have leased. She, too, shows her dislike for the two Americans, but is coldly polite and provides them food and lodging. Mark and Nat are puzzled by this reception, but are too tired to wonder much.

CHAPTER II

The sun was streaming brightly into the room when they were awakened by the boy, carrying a tray with eggs and toast, coffee and preserves of wild strawberries. He set it down on the table, favored them with a sour grin and withdrew.

They stared about them, with difficulty taking in, for the moment, the circumstances of their arrival.

"Breakfast in bed! Can you beat that?" asked Nat. "Gosh, I'm as hungry as a bear, Mark."

They ate and drank, changed the clothes in which they had slept for their old ones, now dry, looked at each other and laughed.

"Everything I had in the world was in that old valise," said Nat. "Guess we'll make quite a sensation in the local dry-goods store, buying out their stock. Let's take a look-see outside."

Nobody was stirring outside the house, and the shades of Madeleine Kinross' room were down. In front of them were more roughly terraced steps, leading up to the elevation of the ridge.

At the top, Nat looked about him and whistled. Slowly he moved around the compass, taking in the whole view. And Mark, who had never seen it from that point before, looked about in equal admiration. But mixed with this was a passionate determination not to be ousted by Broussac, whatever reason he might have to allege for his communication.

They were standing at the commencement of a sort of natural rock bridge, about wide enough for two carts to pass each other. On either side the land fell away so sharply as to convey the impression of tremendous height.

Behind them was the all-but-island on which stood the lighthouse and the other buildings, with the blue St. Lawrence beyond, and the dim outlines of the south shore, hazy in the far distance. In front of them, straggling down to the little harbor, was St. Victor, a mere line of wood shacks.

Beyond the little wharf Mark could see the mill, the long flume and the dam, and higher up, the cleft of the St. Victor river, and the banks, still snow-covered, with the great trees towering over all.

Among the schooners was a trim motor-yacht, anchored to the head of the wharf.

"Some place," said Nat.

"You bet."

"How about having it out with Madame Kinross?"

"I've an idea," said Mark, "that Broussac's aboard that yacht. I guess my wire upset him more than his letter did me."

"If he is, we ought to know soon. I guess the news of our arrival has already spread to the village."

"Let's go down and see. We hold the winning hand, so let's play it."

Women appeared instantaneously at the doors of the shacks. They stared at the two; one clutched a child as it was about to run toward the strangers, dragged it to her, and thrust it, screaming, inside the cabin. A boy thumbed nose and screeched invective.

Mark Proves He Can Defend Himself

A little group of habitants was forming at the head of the wharf, where they had been mending fishing-nets or sunning themselves upon the banks. Within a minute, just as Mark and Nat had reached the hotel, a half-circle had been formed about them, and the mutterings were becoming curses.

Monsieur Hector Mackintosh, the landlord, a thickset, burly man of fifty, was standing in his shirtsleeves at the hotel entrance. Using a toothpick vigorously, he failed to recognize Mark's salutation.

"You do not seem to remember me, Monsieur Mackintosh?" asked Mark, a deceptive softness in his voice.

"No, I do not remember you, whoever you are, and my hotel is full," growled the landlord.

The curses had become shouts. The half-circle was beginning to close in. Things looked ugly for the strangers.

"What's that they're saying?" asked Nat Page.

"They're calling us spies and detectives from Quebec. They think we've come to investigate their gear before they start for the sealing-grounds," Mark answered.

"Tell them we're not detectives!" shouted Nat.

"Let them find it out," grinned Mark, and swung about by instinct as a huge man came rushing at him from behind, knife in hand. Next instant this assailant found his knife-hand held in a firm grasp, and his head under Mark's arm, while Mark's other fist pummeled the imprisoned face until its owner yelled for mercy.

Mark flung him away. The two were completely ringed now, and a sudden silence had fallen, ominous because it was evident that St. Victor's blood was up, and that it was nursing itself for something more murderous than before.

Then suddenly Madeleine Kinross' clear, high voice rose above the crowd, and turning, Mark saw her standing a little distance away. She was wearing a sweater and skirt, high boots, a little cap over her dark hair, and it was clear that she had discovered Mark's and Nat's absence, and followed them into the village.

"Leave those two men alone!" she cried. "Ah, Louis Larousse," she cried to the big man who had held the knife, as he stumbled past her, his hands to his discoloring face, "you got just what you deserved! Are you not ashamed, all of you, to set upon these two strangers, who were shipwrecked on the point last night, and owe their lives to a miracle of God?"

Down the street in her wake came the portly figure of the cure, who had just received news of the trouble. It seemed to add point to the girl's outcry. The muttering crowd drew back and was silent.

"Are you not ashamed of yourselves, I say?" Madeleine Kinross continued. "They are not spies nor detectives. I do not know who spread this stupid story among you. I have told you that they are not, but you will not believe me."

Broussac Becomes A 'Friendly Enemy'

"No, Monsieur Mark Darrell has leased three thousand arpents of my lands, and the mill, with which, as you know, Monsieur Broussac tried to make some money for me. Monsieur Broussac leased these lands with my approval, before I became of age, because—you know, you know that otherwise all my husband's signiory would have gone to the Government for taxes."

"But since then, Monsieur Broussac has made a fortunate speculation for me, and so Monsieur Darrell will of course release me from the agreement."

"You know—you know," she went on passionately, while the crowd listened in utter silence, "I have never believed my husband, the seigneur, died on that ice-floe in the fog. If he had died, I should know it. I should feel it here." She struck her hand upon her breast. "Perhaps he became insane, and is being detained somewhere by those who are ignorant of his identity."

"Some day he will return. I know it, I feel it. And it is my duty, as his wife, to preserve the timber rights on his property. Come, am I not speaking rightly? You, Monsieur Lacombe"—she turned to the cure—"am I not right? Do you believe my husband is dead?"

The portly cure remained as silent as the crowd.

"I have watched you all. When I say that the seigneur is not dead, you look at me as if I were crazy. But I am not crazy. He will return, and I must protect his rights. Therefore"—she turned to Mark—"you will, of course, rescind that agreement that you made with Monsieur Broussac last fall."

"I'm sorry," said Mark, "but I have two other persons to consider besides myself. It is a matter of business investment, and will have to go through."

"You—you mean to say you will not? That you will stay here in defiance of the wishes of everybody, and try to run that mill?"

"Yes," answered Mark, still boiling over at the thought of his reception. "I will neither be intimidated nor appealed to. Yes," he added, glancing at the gaping faces, and speaking in French, "I shall remain here."

Suddenly cries arose from the direction of the wharf. A man came striding along it, a man in a spruce blue suit, with a fur coat with black lamb collar. A man of about forty years, with a trim black moustache, an intelligent face, a lounging, studied carelessness in his walk—Horace Broussac.

Still that silence persisted, until Broussac came up to where Mark confronted Madeleine Kinross. He raised his black lamb cap, and offered Mark his hand. Mark saw no reason to refuse to take it.

"You gave me a fine chase, young man," said the lawyer. "Lucky I had a friend who was willing to lend me his yacht. And I hear you nearly got drowned last night into the bargain."

"He says he will not go," said Madeleine, wringing her hands. "How much money does he need to go, Cousin Horace?"

"Which is precisely the point," said Broussac, speaking in English now, which Mark could see nobody, not even Madeleine or the cure, understood. He motioned Mark a foot or two away. He shook his finger in kindly reproof.

"Legally nobody can deny your right to the lease I signed with you on behalf of my ward last fall," he said. "Madame Kinross is now of age. That does not cancel the lease. But she feels so strongly against the intrusion of outsiders into St. Victor, against the alienation of her late husband's lands, that I am forced to ask you for a cancellation."

"Since the lease was signed, her fortunes have improved through a wise speculation. In brief, Monsieur, if you had written me, instead of rushing up here, and nearly losing your life, I should have offered you five thousand dollars for the cancellation of that lease."

Mark wondered what other prospective lessee Broussac had got, and how much more he was willing to pay, that he should be willing to make that offer.

"I'm sorry—no," he replied. "The contract stands."

Broussac's face grew red. "Understand, Mr. Darrell, I am not to be bargained with," he cried. "If you are holding out for six, I might pay six. Not a cent more. Come, you have lost nothing. What do you say?"

"The lease stands," answered Mark. "That's all."

"That's your last word?"

"It is."

"And how do you think you are going to run the mill at a profit in this fishing and sealing country, when even I failed? How are you going to operate in the face of the universal opposition of these people? They don't want outsiders. They won't work for you. You'll lose everything."

"That's your last word?" asked Mark. "Then listen to me. I'll run that mill, and if I encounter any opposition from you, or any more violence, such as has occurred this morning, I shall hold you personally responsible, Monsieur Broussac. I shall likewise take it up with the Bar Association. My backers are not without influence at Quebec. Now it's up to you."

Broussac's face was a study in mottled red and white. He began breathing hard, like a man who has run a race. He watched Mark's face closely.

"Very well," he answered. "Try to run the mill. There shall be no opposition from me, no violence. But try—only try!" He raised his voice in French. "Monsieur Darrell has come here to work the mill, and to ship lumber," he shouted. "If any man here annoys him in any way, I promise him six months in the Quebec jail. Voila! I trust," he continued suavely, "that we shall be friendly enemies, Mr. Darrell?"

St. Victor Changes
Its Attitude

"I'm satisfied," said Mark. Unconsciously he had turned his eyes upon Madeleine's face. The consternation and anger that he saw there seemed unaccountable for by the situation. Broussac, of course, had been responsible for her change of mind—but what game was the shrewd lawyer playing, and what better offer had he had than the customary stumpage fee that Mark had agreed to in the contract?

The attitude of St. Victor had completely changed. Monsieur Hector Mackintosh, the landlord of the hotel, had suddenly remembered Mark, and his hotel was not full after all—in fact, it was empty. He was all suavity when Mark and Nat took up their quarters there late the same afternoon, without returning to the lighthouse.

Alphonse Vitard, the storekeeper opposite the hotel, a tall, lean man, who had formerly followed the sea, like nearly all St. Victor, was the mayor. He was most affable. His spring shipment, he regretted to say, had not yet arrived, but he had shirts, beautiful shirts from Montreal, mackinaws, underwear, shoes—in fact, all the essentials of a gentleman's toilet.

THE college football campaign of 1946 is so packed or studded with important dates that millions of football followers are left in a somewhat bewildered state. Many requests have come to this also bewildered department, asking us to pick the major games from a dizzy schedule that has more class than any football program we have known.

We hesitate to pick up this assignment since it means denunciation from a few colleges and many chambers of commerce, who insist their home-town games deserve high ranking. Complaints from the colleges are rare. The chambers of commerce are the more embittered souls.

Anyway here is Grantland Rice our ranking of the more important contests. There are so many vital games that one can only hit a few of the high spots. On October 12 we have Army meeting Michigan at the top game of that date, a complete sell-out back in June. . . . $7,000 at Ann Arbor. Indiana vs. Illinois is close behind. For old times sake, Princeton and Harvard must be considered, then Navy and Duke. And among the better games of this day we find Columbia and Yale, two of the best teams in the Ivy league—also the country.

Two Southern Headliners

The big game on October 19 will be Georgia vs. Oklahoma A. and M., (at Athens, Ga., not Greece). This will be one of the season's high spots. A game of almost equal importance will be Alabama and Tennessee—Bob Neyland vs. Frank Thomas. On this date Army faces Columbia in a toss-up. A possible thriller.

The schedule now carries us to October 26 when Army meets Duke and Ohio State meets Minnesota. Just a moment—Michigan meets Illinois in a game that might easily decide the Big Nine championship. And Pennsylvania meets Navy in a traditional rivalry.

The big game of November 2 is Georgia and Alabama. This game is fragrant with a Rose Bowl odor, a Sugar or an Orange Bowl taste. . . . Trippi vs. Gilmer. Here is one of the most vital or important games of the year, if you have the feeling that football games are vital or important. Probably they are not. Anyway this is the game of that particular date, closely followed by Notre Dame and Navy.

Army-Notre Dame Clash

The outstanding melee of November 9 is Army and Notre Dame. This is the game that could easily draw 500,000 fans. Biff Jones says 1,000,000 tickets could be sold if there were only room enough. This will be the feature game of the year, considering the Army's wrecking assault on Notre Dame in 1944 and 1945, plus Frank Leahy's trek of vengeance.

Later on we have Penn and Army, Harvard and Yale, Ohio State and Michigan. Also Southern California and UCLA, Army and Navy. The schedule makers this season have given the country the top menu in football history. With few exceptions they have all picked the strongest opponents they could find. You might add a few sprigs of laurel blossoms to Tulane and Southern California who have done the widest ranging in the tiger jungle, battling everyone in sight until December 21. Both play Notre Dame and both play each other, as well as such teams as Alabama, Ohio State, L. S. U. and a few more.

This fall campaign of 1946 will be the high spot of campus play since Princeton met Rutgers over 75 years ago. The schedule we have outlined is only a small part of the big show—a mere fragment. But there isn't space enough to cover all the turmoil.

Batting Crowns

The National league pennant fight between the Cardinals and the Dodgers has been baseball's leading feature this season and will remain the year's high spot.

The Red Sox runaway victory and the Yankee collapse have been the American league's contribution to the comment of many busy tongues.

But the individual side has more than its share of public interest, which has overwhelmed all past records in the way of attendance.

One of the main entries in this field is Ted Williams, star of the Red Sox. Ted, a great natural hitter, started out to lead both leagues at bat, in home runs and runs batted in—the triple batting crown.

For a while it looked as if the wallowing Williams would run away with all three marks. He began blasting home runs at an early date as his batting average hovered around .380. But toward the close of the season he found himself tied into a number of knots. Serious competition was coming from Musial, the N. L. batting star.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Are Returning Veterans "Different"?

During the war you heard a lot about how hard it was going to be for returning veterans to get adjusted to civilian life... how they'd be "different."

Well, plenty of them have returned to our town, and a finer, steadier bunch you couldn't ask for. Most of them are back at the same jobs... going with the same nice home-town girls (getting married, some of them, and setting up families)... renewing the same old friendships.

Even their amusements are the same. Nothing more exciting than fishing Seward's creek or pitching horseshoes... enjoying an outdoor barbecue with friendly wholesome beer and pleasant talk.

If they've changed at all it's in the direction of maturity and tolerance... tolerance for everything except dictators, and those who would destroy our democratic principles of live and let live. And from where I sit, that's another reason to be proud of them.

4-H Girls Complete Club Season

The 4-H girls of Will County have successfully completed another season of club work — club work which has consisted of projects in clothing, food and room improvements. From a total of 339 different girls enrolled in 4-H, 90 per cent have completed their projects and now are achievement members of the 4-H organization. Gold achievement seals were awarded 25 of the Home Economics 4-H clubs for having had more than 75 per cent of their members in the Spring enrollment complete. The 4-H girls have become more skilled in the heart of the 4-H program — in foods, clothing, and homemaking — learning to stitch a fine seam, acquiring ability in the selection and preparation of foods and in making a dull room more attractive and gay.

4-H is not only an organization centered on learning a new practice or skill, but is also one of bettering personalities and creating more wholesome community interests. Activities are planned on a county-wide basis for the participation of every 4-H boy and girl. 4-H girls from Plainfield know 4-H girls from Wilmington; Will County 4-Hers know Jefferson County 4-Hers; and Illinois 4-Hers know 4-Hers from New York. What other youth organization today can boast of such a broad scope of friendship — a friendship that is based on the same kinds of interests, projects and love of real living!

From their backgrounds in 4-H work over a period of years, twelve girls were chosen as county outstanding winners. This title is bestowed upon them after a very careful selection which is based on quantity and shown progress in their work, participation in activities of health, club, county, or state events, and their leadership ability and responsibilities in club, county, community and state organizations.

They are: Helen Goodwin of Wilmington with 11 years of club work, Clarabelle Sippel of Monee with 9 years of club work, Martha Jean Johnston of Joliet with 9 years of club work, Eleanor Kopelman of Lockport with 8 years of club work, Gladys Mae Krapf of Manhattan with 9 years of club work, Frances Jones of Wilmington with 9 years of club work, Myrna Noble of Wilmington with 10 years of club work, Helen Reddy of Manteno with 5 years of club work, Rosemary Scarth of Elwood with 5 years of club work, Donna Christiansen of Elwood with 5 years of club work, Rosemary Archibald of Joliet with 5 years of club work.

Alice Pounovich of Lockport and Vernice Buck of Peotone received honorable mention for their records in this contest.

County achievement medals were awarded to Helen Goodwin, Clarabelle Sippel, Martha Jean Johnston and Eleanor Kopelman.

County food preparation medals were awarded to Helen Reddy, Koreen Krapf, Frances Jones and Myrna Noble.

County clothing medals went to Gladys Mae Krapf, Rosemary Archibald, Jeanette Scarth and Donna Christiansen.

Helen Goodwin was nominated for the scholarship contest which is entered by 27 Northern Illinois counties.

Eleanor Kopelman of Lockport and Gladys Mae Krapf of Manhattan were the two junior leaders chosen to attend Junior Leadership Camp next summer. This is the highest honor which a county can give a 4-H member and a delegate may attend leadership camp only once. Koreen Krapf and Helen Reddy were chosen as alternates.

Project honor awards were also given to seventy 4-H girls from the county. These awards were based on this year's record in 4-H activities.

These girls are: Muriel Bettenhausen, Frances Jones, Donna Christiansen, Rosemary Archibald, Bonnie Krapf, Helen Goodwin, Elsie Birkett, Jean Phillips, Gloria Weidenbach, Ollidene Werner, Elvera Ann Roach, Margaret Davy, Norma Krapf, Eleanor Kopelman, Clarabelle Sippel, Gladys Mae Krapf, Francis Loitz, Lorraine McCliff, Barbara Ann Bray, Mary Sue Weers, Vernice Buck, Elaine Bobzin, Koreen Krapf, Ann Archibald, Diane McHugh, Rita Phillips, Beverly Mandella, Ruth Hamilton, Carolyn Krapf, Norma Hildebaugh, Jeanette Scarth, Lois Armstrong, Rose Crutchfield, Betty Bennett, Mary Frances Gray, Dorothy Kohl, Betty Jane Hancy, Mary Giddings, Alice Poundovich, Mary Jane Korst, Ardis Elenwood, Wilma Mark, Phyllis Pettigrew, Helen Reddy, Myrna Noble, Elizabeth Rapp, Beverly Ann Goodwin, Mary Alice George, Lorraine Funk, Joan Bierman, Dolores Pnichrehm, Barbara Ann Offermann, Ester Lewis, Marie Eleanor Novy, Grace Johnson, Shirley Weichbrodt, Evelyn Reiter, Arlene White, Norma Reichenbach, Lois Corlett, Theresa Gallagher, Alice Smith, Doris Gallagher, Martha Jean Johnson, Alice Marie Bishop, Phyllis Koenig, Bernice Heisner, Nancy

Maloney, Bonnie Jean Sing.

Honorable mention was also given to the following girls for their project ratings: Phyllis Triem, Laurelle Shreffler, Jean Murphy, Doris Hinspeter, Edna Jean Harding, JoAnn Honiotes, Helen Swanson and Helen Anderson.

All of these girls are to be congratulated for a task well done, and something special should be said too, for the fine cooperation they have received from their "Moms and Dads". Parents play such an important roll in encouraging and in lending support to 4-H projects and activities. They help their sons and daughters to become better citizens of their respective communities. They help make the 4-H slogan come true—"to make the best better."

AURORA TRACK CONTINUES

Swinging into its third successful week of harness racing, Aurora Downs continues to draw winners from the champion circles of famous record-breaking trotters and pacers.

Making her first appearance of the year on the Aurora Downs track, Miss Ruby, holder of the World's record for 1/16 mile on a half mile track, climaxed the second week of the meeting by duplicating her record-breaking feat of last spring and pacing the distance in 1:06 3/4 to establish a new mark. Owner Elmer Conrad, Corydon, Ind., drove his eight year old bay mare to the record, cutting half a minute from her old time, in winning the first division of the $5,000 Pacing Derby Saturday night.

J. M. Overfield, Miami, Okla., 73 year old owner and driver was badly injured in the first race Monday night when his horse Mer Mc, stumbled on the far turn and threw Overfield and his sulky over his head. Overfield suffered several broken ribs, head, chest and back injuries and an injured right hip.

A second accident the same night occurred when Northland, owned and driven by J. S. Altizer, Donaldson, Ia., lost his sulky and failed to finish.

The meeting will continue through November 2nd and is expected to prove a popular attention-getter for the closing weeks. More than 300 horses now competing in the Grand Races at Lexington have made stable reservations, and racing secretary Leon Dygert expects 50 per cent of that number will come to Aurora Downs. Then, too, the rival track in Chicago closes two before Aurora Downs rings down the curtain.

KEEP EGG VOLUME UP
DURING FALL AND WINTER MONTHS—
USE
LIGHTING

Longer Working Hours for Layers add up to more fall and winter eggs on Carl Zimmerman's poultry farm near Grant Park, above, and on Richard Hall's place near Bradford, right. Both managers Clyde Graves on the Zimmerman farm and Richard Hall use lights to encourage hens to knuckle down and produce more when premium prices are paid.

IT'S true... a little more light can mean a lot more eggs. Proof? The increasing number of alert and progressive poultrymen who are turning to poultry house lighting to keep the eggs coming—when profits are larger!

By lighting up their laying houses in the morning or evening, or both, their layers are given a 12 to 14-hour working day in which to beat the usual fall and winter egg slump... are able to keep production at a peak.

If you are not yet using poultry house lighting, start now—before the short dark days begin—to provide your birds with a longer laying day. You'll find the simplest equipment (a few bulbs and an automatic time switch) is all that's needed to get them up earlier and keep them working longer producing extra eggs... extra profits for you. Prove to yourself that reaching for the time switch is like reaching for extra eggs.

Electricity for Poultry House Lighting and other poultry house chores is available to more than 91% of the farms in the area served by this company.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, October 6, was:

"UNREALITY"

The Golden Text was:

"All that is in the world, the lust of the flesh, and the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world" (1 John 2: 16).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible:

"And one of the scribes came, and having heard them reasoning together, and perceiving that he had answered them well, asked him, Which is the first commandment of all? And Jesus answered him, The first of all the commandments is, Hear, O Israel; The Lord our God is one Lord; And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength: this is the first commandment" (Mark 12: 28-30).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy:

"Jesus urged the commandment, 'Thou shalt have no other gods before me,' which may be rendered: Thou shalt have no belief of Life as mortal; thou shalt not know evil, for there is one Life,—even God, good . . . There is but one primal cause. Therefore there can be no effect from any other cause, and there can be no reality in aught which does not proceed from this great and only cause . . . Divine Science deals its chief blow at the supposed material foundations of life and intelligence. It dooms idolatry. A belief in other gods, other creators, and other creations must go down before Christian Science." (pp. 19, 207, 535).

Tired of SNAFU?

Our veterans of World War II had a word for "confusion". It was "SNAFU", meaning "situation normal, all fouled up". They expected to be through with 'snafu' once the war was over, but --- as everybody knows--everything has been more confusing then ever. Now is the time to protest loud and strong against all types of "snafu" by voting Republican on November 5. The Republican candidates have been carefully selected by the Republican voters themselves, and they are pledged to give you order instead of chaos.

CAUSES OF FIRE AND FIRE PREVENTION

By Donald Goesel, 8th Grade

One of our worst common enemies is fire. When one often hears the word "fire" they get panic-stricken. The best thing to do is to keep your head, be calm, and do what you think ought to be done.

Fire usually starts by carelessness on your part. You are the one that starts it. They way to prevent fire is to search the house you live in not just once or twice but quite often.

Matches are the worst enemy to us. Older people are as bad as the young ones. The best kind of matches are the ones you have to strike on the side of the box. Keep matches up high out of the reach of smaller children.

There are many ways of causing a fire like the starting of a prairie fire or a bond fire and then getting out of hand. Keep inflammables away from the home. Keep oily rags in a metal can.

Fire is a dangerous enemy, if one sees a fire the first thing is to call the fire department and then get the people away from the fire so as not to get burned.

Smoking is another thing, when you light a cigarette don't just drop the match, make sure it is out by stepping on it; remember, "Matches have heads but no brains. When you use their head, use your brains."

From the fires 27 Americans are killed daily. Most of this is just carelessness on your part.

FIRE PREVENTION

By Betty Oulman, 6th Grade

A fire is easily started in a home where rubbish has accumulated. Do not leave rubbish laying around.

There should never be matches within a small child's reach. They are to young to realize the danger of fire. Often a child will be playing with matches when a fire is started. The child could be severely burned and even killed before someone could reach him.

Also smoking in bed is very dangerous. Hot ashes may drop from the cigarette and catch the blankets afire. Fire spreads very fast and soon the house would be on fire.

In any house the wiring should be in good repair. Electric frons should always be turned off when they are not in use. Furnaces should be inspected yearly and kept clean and in good repair.

A burner for garbage should be a closed can. If it is not closed a fire can be burning in it and spread to a tree or garage and maybe even cause the home to burn.

Inflammables such as kerosene, gas oil and naphtha should never be kept in your home! They cause frightful fires!

ROCK ISLAND ADDS NEW FAST TRAIN TO ARIZONA AND COAST

With the inauguration of the IMPERIAL, a new fast train service, operating daily between Chicago, Arizona and Los Angeles by the Rock Island and Southern Pacific railroads, effective Oct. 6, another scenic route is opened for travelers between the East and west.

The IMPERIAL, providing coach, Pullman, dining and lounge club car accommodations, derives its name from the rich Imperial Valley of Southern California, an "Oasis in the Desert", irrigated by the waters of the Colorado River. Travelers on the IMPERIAL speed west from Chicago on the Golden State Route, through Kansas City, El Paso, Tucson and Phoenix.

At Yuma, Arizona the train leaves the Golden State Route, dipping southward over the International boundary to Old Mexico at Mexicali, thence northward into the historic valley, through El Centro, Calexico, and Niland, California where the Golden State Route is rejoined, 125 miles east of San Diego.

The Westbound Imperial, departing from Chicago at 11:00 a. m., carries complete Pullman accommodations, including drawing room compartment, and sectional space. In addition to Chicago-Los Angeles and Kansas City-Los Angeles sleepers, the new train also carries through sleeping cars between Chicago, Tucson and Chicago and Phoenix. It operates between Chicago and Los Angeles on an expedited schedule of 53 hours Westbound and 52 1/2 hours Eastbound.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.
Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.
There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

KING FOR A DAY . . . At Worthington, Minn., where 2½ million dollars worth of turkeys are marketed yearly, King Turkey Day is an annual event of October.

IN THESE UNITED STATES

Gobbler Reigns Supreme
At King Turkey Day Fete

WNU Features

WORTHINGTON, MINN.—The turkey may gobble his last come the traditional holidays of November and December—but in October he reigns as king in Worthington, "turkey capital of the world."

An annual event of October is King Turkey Day, when this small midwestern community of 8,000 is host to approximately 50,000 visitors at its major entertainment attraction of the year.

Highlight of this year's King Turkey Day, revived after a wartime lapse, was an address by Clinton P. Anderson, secretary of agriculture. With the celebration of the diamond jubilee of the city's founding also incorporated with the observance, special attention was placed on historical aspects of the city's growth.

Provide Entertainment.

To satisfy hearty appetites induced by the sharp tang of the autumn air, free pancakes and coffee were served throughout the day under the "big top." The tent also served as site for a vaudeville performance, an evening stage show and a free dance.

Other attractions included a street parade and a concert by the 80-piece Washington high school band of Sioux Falls, S. D.

Worthington Civic and Commerce association is general sponsor of the observance, assisted by other civic groups.

Worthington is the center of a turkey-raising community where flocks range in number from 250 to more than a thousand. Largest flock in the area contains 40,000 birds.

To provide poulters for the turkey raisers of Worthington and other Midwestern areas, three large turkey hatcheries are located here. They have a total egg setting capacity of 3,580,000 eggs. In addition to the turkey hatcheries, several chicken hatcheries and two large

STILL FEEL LIKE GRIPING? . . . Accommodations may be a bit crowded on American trains, but this scene shows real overcrowding on a Rumanian railroad. One train has to do the work of four, with fully as many passengers riding on the roofs of the cars and hanging onto the sides as are riding inside the cars.

Tattoo File Aids in Identification

EAST LANSING, MICH.—As a further means of identification for criminals, a tattoo file is being established by Michigan state police. The file will list all designs known to be on the person of criminals.

"The new addition to the regular stock of identification records should make Michigan definitely not a healthy area for criminals' activities," Capt. Harold Mulbar, chief poultry processing plants are located here.

Returns are High.

From the Worthington turkey hatcheries, approximately three and one-half million turkey poulters valued at about two and one-half million dollars were hatched last year. The hatcheries' output was distributed to 40 states as well as to Central and South America.

Taking advantage of modern modes of transportation, hatchery operators utilize air transportation to rush the poulters to their destination. Largest single air shipment involved the transportation of 15,525 poulters from Worthington to New Orleans and thence to Mexico and South America.

Pack 20,000 Daily.

King Turkey Day is held annually during the marketing operations preceding the holiday season. From Worthington's processing plants approximately 15 million pounds of turkeys valued at 6½ million dollars are marketed each year. During the peak of the season, 20,000 birds are packed and boxed ready for shipment daily.

During the war Worthington did its bit to provide a home-like touch to holiday dinners for fighting men on all fronts. The turkey which featured many holiday dinners came from this Minnesota area, the two Worthington processing concerns packing almost exclusively for the army throughout war years.

BUREAU

EDITOR'S NOTE: This newspaper, through special arrangement with the Washington, Bureau of Western Newspaper Union at 1616 Eye Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., is able to bring readers this weekly column on problems of the veteran and serviceman and his family. Questions may be addressed to the above Bureau and they will be answered in a subsequent column. No replies can be made direct by mail, but only in the column which will appear in this newspaper, regularly.

Return of War Dead

Approximately 80 per cent of America's war dead now buried in military cemeteries overseas likely will be brought home as soon as arrangements can be completed by the war department. After World War I bodies of 46,310 American battle dead were returned to this country. Just when the government can start shipment of the bodies, however, is still unknown due to many factors. Chief among them are lack of requests thus far from next of kin, and the shortage of steel caskets. It likely will be spring before the first shipload is returned to the United States.

In the meantime the quartermaster office within the next 30 days will officially poll all next of kin on whether or not they desire to have bodies of their relatives returned here for final burial. The government pays expenses. Ports on both the east and west coast will be used and from these ports the bodies will be sent to 15 distribution centers throughout the country.

Questions and Answers

Q. I am an ex-serviceman and am starting in farming and would like to know if it is still possible for me to purchase a surplus army car, truck or a jeep?—J. G., Prairie Du Chien, Wis.

A. Yes, if such equipment is surplus and offered for sale in your territory. Veterans are given priority for such purchases and in some sections retail stores have been set up where veterans only may buy surplus war equipment and goods even without the formality of priorities. Suggest you contact your county agent, your local veterans' organization, Red Cross or perhaps your local implement or car dealers to learn where such surplus goods may be for sale in your vicinity. There is a surplus war priority information office at 114 West First street, Duluth, Minn., one at 607 Shelby street, Detroit, and one at McKnight building, Minneapolis.

Q. Does the new army retirement pay bill provide for an increase in the benefits paid to a retired enlisted man?—A. J. D., Henderson, Ky.
A. Public Law No. 474, passed by the last congress, does provide for benefits for retired enlisted men. You will be so notified by the army and navy; officials request that persons seeking information do not write to the war department, but await notification, which will come in due time.

Q. How long did congress extend the act requiring men to register for military service?—J. A. R., Moberly, Mo.

A. The provisions of the selective service act requiring registration for military service have been extended to March 31, 1947. They apply to all male citizens of the United States and other male persons residing in the United States who are within the specified age group.

Q. Can you tell me how to properly address an army lieutenant?—Miss C. E., Covington, Ky.

A. A lieutenant should be introduced as "lieutenant" and so addressed officially. Socially, he may be addressed as "mister" by his seniors or contemporaries, but never by his juniors. The adjective "first" or "second" is never used except in official communications.

Q. My son enlisted in the army when he was 17 years old. Can he ask for a discharge on the basis that he was under age?—Mother, Clovis, N. M.

A. The son himself cannot make application for a minority discharge. The application must be made by a parent or guardian and must be supported by evidence of age.

Q. My brother was with the 3rd army. Can you tell me anything about it?—V. J. B., Olathe, Kans.

A. The 3rd army was activated by Gen. Douglas MacArthur in September, 1932, on general orders from the war department. Gen. Edwin B. Winans took command and served as commanding general until 1938. The 3rd army was formed by units of the National Guard, the regular army and the 4th and 8th corps.

Q. Under the provisions of the new G. I. bill is it possible for a veteran of World War I to ask for a review of his blue discharge from the army?—G. T. B., Bath, Me.

A. The war department says you may request a review. You should make application on the proper form to the adjutant general, war department, Washington 25, D. C. These forms are obtainable from your nearest Red Cross office or possibly from your American Legion post. You also must submit your original blue discharge certificate.

First World War 7 Times
As Large as 901 Others

The 902 major wars that occurred in the world between 500 B. C. and 1918 A. D. were "measured," not long ago at Harvard, by such factors as the number of countries, combatants and casualties involved; and the analysis disclosed that the First World War was seven times as large as the 901 others combined, reports Collier's.

A similar analysis of the recent World war would probably show that it was about four times as large as the First World war.

PICK YOUR CORN EARLY!

Dry It In Crib, with Behlen All-Steel
Ventilators and Tunnels

New, modern, fast way to dry corn.
No more waiting for corn to dry in fields. Pick early, when mechanical pickers work best. Crib it, and let Behlen Ventilators and Tunnels dry corn faster than you ever dreamed possible.

GOODBYE TO CORN BORERS!
Agricultural colleges and experimental stations recommend picking early, to help control corn borers. You get your corn into cribs to dry, and shred or chop stalks and plow under before ground freezes, to kill the borers.

Behlen Tunnels not only ventilate, but are very handy for shelling. Just run sheller
"drag" into tunnel, as at left. Pull out tunnel sections one by one. Corn drops onto conveyor belt. Saves hours of labor!

COME IN NOW!

Don't wait. We have Behlen All-Steel Ventilators and Corn Tunnels on hand now. But due to present industrial situation, we cannot promise we will get any more this fall. We strongly urge you to come in right away, while we are still able to supply you. Cost is less than for old-style wood ventilators.
